New update! Now includes game demo disks
"""""""""""" and free magazine.

MARGINS FORMAT - top margin:.5", bottom: .5", left/right:.3".

Thanks for selecting this shareware file!
This listing has something for virtually all computer users.
'CompuFreebies' is a valuable source of free promotional items, information, product/technical help, and many other things for computer users. Names and descriptions of everything offered are included and is very easy to use. A major computer monthly - PC SOURCES - has reviewed an earlier registered version of 'Freebies' in their April '91 issue New Products section. The magazine staff felt it would benefit their readers and was carefully considered among hundreds of new products. This is not a novelty or gimmick item to be thrown away or used up.

The resources offered here, knowledge gained and contacts made will continue to be helpful for years. This is one of the few shareware products that offers much more value in material items and learning opportunity than the price paid.
Our registered version (described later in detail) is the largest centralized source of demo-disks and free computer-related items in the U.S. available on disk. This file you have now has 2 parts. The first part lists companies offering general free items. The 2nd part lists companies offering 10 free videos.

HOW IS THIS TEXT FILE ORGANIZED

All companies offering free items are organized by software categories. In each software category (word processing, database, desktop publishing, games, magazines, spreadsheet, etc.) you'll find a company offering a free item.

ABOUT ACTUAL SOFTWARE. (Get yours right now!)

The category - 'actual software' lists companies that give away free software. Most will work for at least 30 days - and some for an unlimited time. This is the 'real thing!' You actually receive software which can be used. No features are disabled. You install it on your computer just like regular software you would pay for. All software listed in this category is not disabled and has full features.

As our thanks for reading this long documentation we've included a listing for a company that will send free software. Please see the 'Actual Software' category on page 7.

ABOUT DESCRIPTIONS USED HERE

Descriptions used here are a general guide and not meant to be a comparison or evaluation for any product. Some descriptions are shorter only because the software is complex and could not be easily described, such as an engineering or scientific program. If you're seeking any good program it would be best to request the demo disks for all programs (if more than one is listed) within that category and compare. Do not be guided mainly by brief descriptions in deciding on the best software. Good decisions are based on as much good information as possible. I decided against writing a paragraph or so for each item as it would basically be unfair to the company (a good software feature might go unmentioned) and still not provide enough information for users to go ahead and purchase it. Nothing less than a side-by-side comparison of all software in each category, such as the major magazines do, would be fair. Even those studies must be carefully studied by the user. Descriptions here are used mainly to help in asking for the free item.

AUTHOR AFFILIATION

Author of this shareware file is not employed by any companies listed here or in any other listing available from Infolist. Author has absolutely no interest or gain in promoting any particular company. All company names, product names, trademarks, etc. are property of the respective companies.

HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS

The following will give good results in using this list. When someone answers the phone when contacting any company, the following short 'speech' is recommended: "I'd like to receive product information about _____" (name of free item). If you've reached the switchboard operator you now will be: 1) transferred to sales, marketing, or product info. dept. or, 2) someone will take your name and address and send the item. Often the phone operator will quickly transfer you to some other area if you ask something about their product that sounds complicated. It's important, then, to quickly say you only want something mailed. This might often prevent a call from being transferred or placed on hold. If you're still transferred to another dept. you may have to start all over and ask, "I'd like to receive product information about_____ (name of item)". After a conversation with the company representative, when appropriate, mention the following:

"Please include a demo disk (or other free item) also." This is better than quickly asking only for the item right away. Sometimes you might be asked, "Where did you hear about our product." You can reply, "From Infolist software catalog." Often you may not speak to a sales rep. as many companies are large so they have many people that just mail out literature. Companies are more than happy to send product information. They will send a demo, video, booklet, seminar registration etc. to any individual or company and sometimes will ask basic information such as your company name, address, department, and other things. Do not be concerned about being pressured to buy. You can say that you'd like a demo for now and will call back after reviewing it. Most companies do not call again, I've found. You can, if you like, let them know what you think of the demo, information or whatever else you receive. In fact, they would be very happy to hear from you and perhaps there are other 'extras' which can be made available later on. It's a good idea to listen to the sales or marketing representative as you can learn some good basic information about the computer industry, computer products in general, etc. as well as their product. I've found them to be very informed. However, if you're too busy you can quickly ask to have (whatever) sent and after reviewing it you'll call back. They may ask what use you plan to make for the software. One suggestion is to say you'd like the demo disk for evaluation for your own or company's use. Any item can be sent to your home address (ATT: your name). This may be faster than using your company address. You can still use a company name.

Near the phone number in many listings you may see, 'Press 1, then 2.' You can press 1 as soon as you're connected and hear the recording. Then quickly press 2 once you hear the beginning of another recording. If you feel you might have reached the wrong area call again and this time listen to the entire recording. The company may have changed their phone directory. Once you get an actual person, follow the same instructions in the above paragraph. Usually, items will arrive very quickly. If not, after 15 days you can call again. To keep track, it's a good idea to note the date called and the date item was received. Also write down company contacts. Soon you will have a listing of helpful contacts and friends within the industry. Everything on this list is currently available however, free promotions don't last forever. But to make sure that an item is truly not available you can try the following:

Call in about a half hour and request the item again to make sure. Perhaps when you called the first time you may have reached someone who didn't feel like filling out a form or thought that the offer expired. In some rare cases you might have come across a company that sends demos or other free items only if a specific advertisement or magazine is mentioned. If this happens, call again (it shouldn't happen but I mention it just in case) but do not repeat what was said the first time. You can mention that you heard about their product from any computer magazine, you're unsure where, or anything else you can think of - you happened to jot down their phone number a while ago but forgot what magazine. Also try reaching a company representative that handles some other region of the country.

Phone numbers may change and there may not always be a recording mentioning the new number (rarely happens). Try calling 800 555 1212 (toll free 800 # information) or regular directory assistance. You can always try the company's long distance number. Read on for phone tips and tricks.

COMPATIBILITY

All demo disks listed here will work with IBM compatible personal computers unless otherwise noted. Demo disks will work on virtually all PC's.

SOME NEAT PHONE TRICKS.

(Can be used in trying to reach any company you will ever call - not just those listed here!)

In choosing companies for this listing, I made sure that anyone calling would not have any inconveniences or aggravation. If a company placed me on hold too long or transferred me too many times, or for whatever reason the free item was not easily obtainable, I did not include that company here. But I thought I'd mention some telephone tactics which might be helpful for those who spend a lot of time on the phone.

If no 800 # is listed here, the company doesn't have a toll-free no. Each company was checked thoroughly for any 800 no. Try calling 800 555 1212, directory assistance before dialing a long distance no. There might be a toll-free no. available. However, you needn't worry about this as only one of the companies listed here has no toll free number. If, however, you ever need to find more than one 800 number for a company, write down the company names and ask toll free information for a few numbers at one time. Compuserve also has a free area for finding toll free numbers for any company.

When calling any company (not only those listed here) long distance and you're paying for the call, as soon as someone answers, quickly ask if they have an 800 number. If they do, you can quickly hang up and call right back. Often, some companies may not have their 800 number listed in their own name. For example, a company you see advertised may have a parent company. The 800 number may be listed in that parent company's name. Others may not want the general public to use their 800 number to keep costs down.

In order to properly route calls to the sales rep. or dept. handling your region, many large companies will quickly ask (maybe before you've had a chance to say much!) where you're calling from, name, zip code, etc. After you hear the first question quickly interrupt and say that you only want product info mailed. Sometimes this will speed things up and they will take your name and address right away and send the item.
Other times you will be transferred to some other area. But what happens if you get a voice mailbox, the phone just rings or you're told that "no one is available?" You can do the following:

Try calling back again in a few minutes. This time say that you're calling from some other part of the country. For example, if the first time you mentioned that you called from California and got a voice mailbox or were on hold too long, the second time you call say that you're calling from Michigan. You will then be transferred to the sales (or other company representative) for another part of the country. They naturally will assume you really live or work in that area.
If asked how you happened to "get here to my extension or dept." you can say that the call was misdirected somehow but while you're on the phone, can you please mail the item.
Later you can call back and speak with the regular sales rep. that handles your region. Or, you can say that you're now travelling in that area but mail the item to your business address.

I've done all the above and it does work.

HOW TO AVOID BEING PLACED ON HOLD

If placed on hold after dialing an 800 no. you might want to call again right away. The 2nd time (or even the 3rd or 4th!) you'll most likely not be placed on hold. You'll most likely reach another operator that's not so busy. Your time is too valuable to be placed on hold! Sometimes you may ask someone a question and they are taking much too long. Someone else may have more experience and will find the answer more quickly. If you reach a recording asking you to press a number on your touch tome phone, pressing '0' will often transfer you back to a human voice, even if the company's own recording does not mention this. When leaving a message on a voice mailbox by pressing '#' you'll usually hear some options. Often the company's own recording may not mention this. You can then save your message using the right number on your touch tone pad. Otherwise the message might be lost (not common but why take chances) if you just hang up. After saving you can then press 0 and be transferred to another area - all without having to redial and possibly be placed on hold. This should not happen when requesting any items here, however, I included it just in case.

ABOUT TECH SUPPORT PHONE NUMBERS

Toll-free tech support phone numbers are listed here right next to their regular phone number. Tech support departments for companies without a toll-free tech. support number listed may be reached by calling the long distance number. But call their 800 number listed first to make sure. Tech. support should be able to answer just about any question and help with problems using the company's product. However, speak with marketing, sales or customer service first.

FOR MORE THAN ONE DEMO OR FREE ITEM

If you have many computers, PC's or workstations, you can mention this and ask if they will send the desired amount all at once.

CONTACTING COMPANIES BY MAIL

You can always write to request anything. Include the following in a letter: Your name, address, phone and name of software demo (or other items) you want.

Always include your phone number so they can verify the correct mailing address if necessary. If you really don't want to be called, mention that there is no phone at your location. If you have a hard time getting through by phone you may want to write. Also, if you've called a few times and the item is unavailable, you can try writing as a last resort. However, I would recommend telephoning the company whenever possible.

                    *   *   *

AUTOMATIC 'LIST' PROGRAMS

   The reason why there is no 'list' program that automatically lists this documentation on your screen is that word processors offer many advantages. People are familiar with their own word processors and can format the margins and other information in this file easily. Adding a 'list'

   program adds more complexity and there is a chance that it may not work on 100% of all computers. Some may want to print certain sections of this file. This is easy with your word processor. A list program may not have the right printer set-up. You would have to use 'print screen' from your keyboard - not easy if you have many pages!

    See registration form for ordering information. 5.25 or 3.5" DOS/IBM Compatible disks sent but can be read by Macintosh computers. (for MAC order 3.5" disks only).

    The registered version is ordered exactly the same way as you see here (with many more companies!) except that each of the 42 categories has it's own file on the diskette. You would select the file you're interested in. Don't have to search through one huge file! Thus, word processing companies are in a separate file - named wordproc. Databases are in the 'databas' directory.

    The registered version has 3 more ways (besides Categories) in which the companies are organized:

1) A large file with names and addresses of each company - in mailing list format - 450+ computer companies.

For example:

    AZ TECH SOFTWARE
    305 E FRANKLIN
    RICHMOND, MO 64085

    COMPUTER ASSOCIATES
    711 STEWART AVE.
    GARDEN CITY, NY 11530-4787

    There is no other computer program for the price which has 450+ top computer companies listed neatly for use as a mailing list.

2) A file of company names, addresses and phone numbers.
   Useful for simply contacting each company for any purpose. For example:

    AZ TECH SOFTWARE
    305 E FRANKLIN
    RICHMOND, MO 64085
     800 227 0644   This makes it easier to contact each 816 776 2700   company without having to read through any other information.
                               Of course, if you do not need this information you do not have to BORLAND   go through the file on the disk.

3) And finally, all companies listed in alphabetical order.
   If you want to see all the free items/demos in one place, look here. This is especially helpful when one company has many products and free items. You can easily inquire about many of the different products a company has with only one call:

   COMPANIES A:

   There is NO other listing in the U.S. such as this available on diskette. Our registered version has complete addresses and phone numbers of almost every major computer company in the U.S. All are in alphabetical order. Each company's free items (over 800!) and major products are listed. Windows, DOS, MAC and most computer systems, including mainframes, are supported. Each company can be contacted by phone or letter to request info or free items which they'll gladly send. Most companies listed have toll-free numbers.

1) CompuFreebies - REGISTERED VERSION.

    A listing of hundreds (over 800!) free items you can quickly receive from 450 companies, most with toll-free numbers.
    Everything is free and yours to keep with no obligation.
    Organized into 42 different computer categories including actual software. Yes, many companies do give away free, working software to the public as a promotion. One company gives away $150.00 worth of clip art (computer images to be put into your documents)! Get a free copy of Adobe Type Manager software $100.00 + value free. No 'catches.' However, you must know the proper instructions as detailed in 'CompuFreebies.' Many of the free items are demo disks and working models of popular software programs. Largest source of free computer-related items in the U.S. There are also many free and helpful booklets, CD Roms, CD holders, game demo disks, posters (including posters from game companies), computer magazines, vinyl organizers, free membership BBS's, and lots more. Shows exactly how to receive free tickets to large computer expos, trade shows and company seminars. All neatly organized with complete company addresses and phone numbers. Alphabetical listing of each company and their free items also included. Yet another listing with only company name and addresses to be used as a mailing list. Also a 'surprise' section with some photo-image files (see an actual
    $15.00, includes postage in the U.S. and Canada. Overseas add$2.50 for airmail.) One 5.25 HD, (2) 360K disks or one 3.5" diskette. IBM/DOS compatible diskettes. Can also be read by Macintosh computers using File Exchange Software supplied with MAC's. All companies can be called from any phone in the world.

2) VIDEOLIST.

    Contains names and phone nos., most toll free, of companies offering free computer-related (and some travel and tour-guide) videos. 140 videos!. Videos describe products and companies. Call companies directly from listing. Everything totally free. Videos are used for promotion and advertising.
    One company sends, with their video, a $10.00 credit to be used when visiting any doctor! NOTE: CompuFreebies full version lists approx. 19 videos. (Price - $3.25, includes domestic postage. Add 50 cents for overseas airmail) Paper.

3) MAGAZINE LIST.

    A guide to obtaining free sample issues of magazines and free subscriptions. Total of 166 magazines! Yes, FREE subscriptions - even for magazines normally sold in stores.
    Free subscriptions help increase revenue from advertisers and are encouraged. All toll-free phone numbers and descriptions.

    Contact directly. All completely legal. Four categories: Computers, Business, General Interest and Health. Many first-rate, well-known magazines including the largest available. Includes all computer magazines with 'PC' in title. Windows, Macintosh, Networks, more. Many investment/financial newsletters. Same publications available on newsstands for $2.50 to $7.00 (more for investment newsletters.) Absolutely no cost to you. Under NO obligation to subscribe. Very easy to request, simple directions. (Price - $4.95, includes postage). Paper.

4) NY HOTELIST.

    A guide listing 20 of the least expensive and best quality hotels in New York City. All hotels are in safe areas. As a long time NYC resident I know each area and only considered hotels in the safest areas. Lists hotel names, addresses,phone nos., rates. Hotels in NYC are usually expensive - however, rates here are $65 to $130. One hotel has a view of Central Park. (Price - $3.00, includes postage) Paper. Add 50 cents for overseas airmail. Hotels can be called from any phone in the world.

5) PHONELIST.

    The service described here (totally legal!) has no 50 - 75 cent surcharge for their calling card. Make telephone calls without using coins and without paying for surcharges from hotels and other places that usually charge extra (a lot!) for calls made from their phones. Never worry about change for a call again! Used daily by many businesses, now available for individuals. Also - how to save 15% on all your international calls - no minimums, no fees, no special hours.(Price $3.00, includes postage) Paper. Add 50 cents for overseas airmail. Can only be used in U.S. However, if travelling here will be useful.

6) ON LINE GUIDE.

Describes exactly how to get Compuserve and Prodigy membership/startup kits for free - without paying $30.00 to $49.99! Totally legal sources - the companies do not mind at all as they gain more members. Shows exactly how to become a member, using your computer and modem, of the 6 major national on-line services - Compuserve, Prodigy, Genie, America On Line, Delphi and BIX. Complete instructions, 800 numbers for customer service, best times to call, complete rates, some inside information, more. All in easy to read 5 page guide. Information not available anywhere else all together in one place. (Price $3.50, includes postage).
Paper. Overseas customers: Check locally for sign on procedures.

7) SUMMONS GUIDE.

Guaranteed to save you money on parking and speeding fines.
Using these methods you will avoid paying at least one future parking summons that you ordinarily would have paid.
Everything legal! Shows exactly what to look for on a parking
- 23 -
or speeding ticket to reduce the fine or void it completely.
What to write in a letter and suggestions on what to say in court. Valid in all 50 states. (Price - $3.25, includes postage). Paper.

Specialized listings are also available. For example, reliable and inexpensive sources for computer (or other merchandise) equipment, supplies, etc. Let us know your requests/needs.
Please write/send email if any questions at all. Thanks.

Hundreds of satisfied customers have ordered our full version and other products. Not one complaint!

You do not have to print out our registration form to register or order our other items. You can use the form as a 'worksheet'. Simply write down the following on a separate paper:

1) Names of the item(s) you'd like, and place where this shareware file was obtained.
2) Comments or suggestions, if you like, on your own paper OR on comment form supplied here.
3) Enclose check or money order.

COMMENT FORM - WHAT DID YOU THINK OF THIS FILE?

You would really be helping us if you could print out the comment form and send it in (or send in your comments on your own paper). Your comments and ideas will help us serve you better and make our products more useful. If it can be made better perhaps we can then charge more! (only kidding).

Orders shipped within 48 hours.

     10 companies offering 10 free videos are listed here. Title of each video and brief descriptions are included. These videos are mainly computer-related and describe products made by each company. You can learn from these tapes about the subjects covered as well as the company's products.

     Promotions and offers may end, however, all videos are currently available as this is constantly updated. Ask for extension, if listed, or request by video title. If you reach an operator, give the extension number (if listed) or just ask for the title of the video. Videos arrive in re-usable boxes and can be recorded over after viewing. If anyone asks how you heard about the video mention Infolist catalog. If you're told that the video is no longer available, call back later.
     Often a different person may be more cooperative. If calling a second time and are asked how you heard about the video mention a major computer magazine, or that you're not sure how you learned about it but had written down the company's phone no. You should rarely encounter such difficulty but I mention it just in case. If you don't have a touch tone phone and you reach a recording, eventually a company operator will answer.

     Videolist, one of our products, (described later in detail) lists 140 free videos and is the largest centralized source of free videos in the U.S. All the companies are constantly updated so there is no need to worry about outdated phone numbers or other information.

        ADVANTAGES, USEFULNESS AND DESCRIPTIONS OF ITEMS OBTAINED THROUGH USE OF THIS FILE AND REGISTERED VERSION
        """"""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""""

1) WORKING MODELS OF MAJOR SOFTWARE PROGRAMS, DEMO DISKS AND ACTUAL SOFTWARE.

There is NO other centralized listing as large as CompuFreebies (registered version) in the U.S. available on diskette. There is only one other available on CD Rom which is much more expensive but free items listed are only demo disks, not booklets, videos, free expos, seminars or other things.

What exactly is a demo disk? These are given away as part of advertising and promotion efforts, especially for new products. Most are similar to slide shows and you watch colorful screens magically appear. There is an example of most of the features. The term 'self-running demo' is often used for these types of demos. A working model does the most of any demo disk and is also more expensive to produce. It is almost the very same software sold for a lot of money. Unlike self-running or interactive demos, with a working model you can actually use many of the same features of the actual, expensive program. Each company's working model has unique limitations; most do not allow saving and/or printing. For obvious reasons, some functions cannot work or companies would in effect be giving away their software. However, some companies are more generous than others with usable features on the working model. One company's working model (found in the full version) allows design of up to 30 IC's (Integrated Circuits) for printed circuit boards. Our registered version lists all of Microsoft's working models including Windows.
The working model of Windows 3.0 actually allows use of Windows in the lowest operating mode. For many people this may be good enough. You'll actually be able to use powerful Windows features. Many demos and other items are not advertised in magazines so Compufreebies is the only place you'll know about them.

- 31 -

You don't have to pay for or return anything. Demos are sent on re-usable diskettes. High density and 3.5" diskettes can be expensive, as you know.

Demos are very valuable in revealing a great deal about the actual software. It will answer many questions such as:

A) exactly how the screens are organized and will appear.
B) how easy will it be to maneuver around, and C) where to locate the features YOU feel are important (not only those which advertisements describe).
D) reveal quality of paper manuals and documentation. If the directions and documentation supplied with the demo disk (especially working models) are easy to use, then there's a good chance that the actual program will have the same qualities.
E) quality of help screens and company support. How well are questions answered about materials received when you call the company? You'll see exactly how much on-screen help is provided.

F) compare one or more software products easily and quickly.
You'll be more certain as to which is the best software for your needs - without having to take a chance on a purchase. Often many magazines rate software and choose 2 programs as the best. You can further compare these 2 quickly on your own computer.

I'm sure there are a lot more than these 6 points but the usefulness of demo disks in evaluating software should be quite clear.

Demos offer many advantages over buying the actual, expensive software for review, for example, some computer/M.I.S. depts. cannot get quick authorization for purchase of a wide variety of actual software. Other problems are: Forms to be completed, red tape, waiting for approval, installation time, returns problems (IF allowed) such as keeping track of return dates, packing, postage, potential loss of items, 're-stocking fees', etc. All this makes it very difficult to review a lot of very good software.

2) BEST CONTACT TELEPHONE NUMBERS AND EXTENSIONS.

Nearly all companies listed here and the registered version have toll-free nos. I have contacted each company and found the most direct phone numbers. As a result, time spent on 'hold' or transferred will be greatly reduced when you call.
You'll reach the department directly responsible for the desired product. Often companies do not list their 800 number in ads or any other literature. But through research I've managed to find and include them here. This feature will save phone charges and time. Detailed instructions on what extension to ask for or number to press is included.

3) ACCESS TO COMPANY EXPERTS, TOLL-FREE TECH SUPPORT AND OPPORTUNITY TO MAKE CONTACTS.

- 32 -
You'll speak with the department most knowledgeable about the product. Sales reps. are very helpful and can answer most questions except the most technical. If a company has toll-free tech support the number is listed near the sales/marketing 800 number. These numbers are not widely advertised and were obtained with a lot of effort. A lot can be learned, including basics. E.g., anyone with an interest in networks can contact a network company that will explain some basics.

Because you can speak with someone quickly and easily much more can be learned with less effort (and cost) than reading a book or manual. For many applications, e.g. Wordperfect, completely free tech. support is available. For those who prefer studying, the booklet category has companies that send good basic guides for most computer fields.

4) VIDEO CASSETTES.

These are also free and describe the company and/or their products. The tapes and boxes can be re-used to tape favorite programs and will fit into any VHS recorder. A total of 19 videos are available in the registered version. Please see the catalog for description of Videolist which offers 140 free videos plus a $10.00 credit from one company to all callers. These are all part of promoting products. However, you will also learn from these videos.

5) BOOKLETS, LITERATURE, MAGAZINES, EXPOS, GAME DEMOS, SEMINARS, DISCOUNT CATALOGS, POSTERS, PERSONAL ORGANIZERS, MUGS, ETC.   (MUGS AND PERSONAL ORGANIZERS AVAILABLE IN REGISTERED VERSION)

Many companies send thick informative booklets and literature describing many computer-related topics. To educate their users they send basic 'How To' booklets. For example, titles read something like, "Getting The Most from Your PC, Network, Mainframe, Connectivity, Telephone, etc. (titles depend on the company.)" I carefully selected booklets which are truly informative and do not try to sell a particular product.
These are not sales materials or brochures and you will really learn a lot from them.

Free computer magazine subscriptions are used to increase ad revenue. Most of the ads deal with specific products and systems. These free magazines are specialized and appeal to a certain reader. These are an excellent source of information, news and events.

Free admission to popular expos and conferences: These are large trade shows with many exhibits from companies all over the U.S. Normally admission at the show without an invitation is at least $10 - $30.00. As with other items, these passes are free to all callers.

Free seminars are given to explain the basics of products and help potential customers understand products and services better. Practically all the expos and seminars listed in the registered version of CompuFreebies are not advertised any place else. Free catalogs are offered are on either CD Rom or
- 33 - diskettes. These are found in the electronic catalog section.
Many sales brochures come in large folders for holding papers.
Large envelopes can be re-used for other mailings.

6) LEARN ABOUT COMPUTER PRODUCTS YOU NEVER KNEW EXISTED.

A convenient listing of companies (such as this) with toll free numbers provides computer users with a great opportunity to explore and come across a solution or helpful product.
Some companies with good products may not take out a full page ad (or any ad) in magazines or newspapers. We have many unadvertised free items and computer products listed.

No purchase is required at any time from any company. Take as much time as necessary to review the demo disks and other material carefully. Only ask for what is really necessary as most things are expensive, especially for mail and handling.

accomplishment on the table, "We put together our first jigsaw puzzle and it only took us six months!" The guest says, "What is so special about that? It doesn't look very difficult." The guys reply, "Well, the cover of the box said
'3 to 5 years'."

I walked into a pizza place down the street from where I use to live. I was with a friend and we could not decide what kind of pizza we wanted. We decided to get a half of one kind and half another. "Give us a large vegetarian pizza, but put pepperoni on half". The guy behind the counter VERY straight faced and quite serious asked: "Which half would you like the pepperoni on?" Without missing a beat, I said "The right half!" He wrote "Pepperoni on the right half" on the tag and handed it to the guy who makes the pizzas. That guy smiled a bit and proceeded to make us our pizza.

About 20 minutes later they called my name. When I went to pick up the pizza I noticed that it was sitting so that the pepperoni was to my right but the counter person's left. I could not resist. I said "Hey, I wanted the pepperoni on the right side not the left side!" This taught me not to be such a smart ass in the future. The clerk, looking worried, grabbed the pizza and tossed it into the trash saying "Damn, I'm sorry, they must have made a mistake. We will make you another one right now!"

25 minutes later, I kept quiet and ate the pizza! My friend and I did laugh about it for quite some time. Especially when the clerk gave us each a free beer and said he was sorry for the mistake and that we had to wait!!!!

This piece of string walks into a bar, and says "Ouch!" He asks the bartender for a drink. The bartender says "Hey, we don't allow string in here. You'll have to leave." The string gets up and walks out. Later he decides to try it again. This time he ties himself in a knot around the middle and cuts the end of the string by his head. He goes back in the bar and orders a drink. The bartender says "Hey, are you a string?" The string says "No, I'm a frayed knot."

I just heard about a group of US tourists who came back from the Soviet Union. They visited Lenin's Tomb, which is one of the most important monuments in the Kremlin. Although the line was long, the foreigners were allowed to go to the front of the line. As they were allowed to enter, one 20 year old woman was not allowed to go in because she wore a short sleeved blouse. (It was in the summer) She couldn't figure out why such a rule existed.

Later on, she asked her travel guide about the rule, and was told that the Soviet constitution does not guarantee the right to bare arms.

SUBJECT: Service Interaction

A particularly insidious kind of sales call now appearing in several cities is one which is initiated by computer, and contains recorded questions by some mellifluous voice that requires answers in simple digits or "yes" and "no". A voice recognition circuit then processes your answers and asks further questions based on your former answers. The sales pitch is usually disguised as a survey of some kind. The despicable thing about these things is that they won't leave you alone. If you hang up, they will just call back again.

One day my wife got a call from one of these computer systems, and her answering machine answered. The conversation that followed was hilarious, as it consisted of two machines talking to each other without having the slightest idea about what each other was saying. The conversation wound up in an endless loop, as follows:

[PHONE] RING

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "...At the tone, please give your message. BEEEEEP."

[PHONE] "Hello. This is [company_name], and we are taking a telephone survey...when I ask a question, wait for the beep, then please speak plainly. I will repeat your answer back to you, and verify it. First, what is your phone number?
BEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

(The answering machine, upon hearing the beep, got confused and thought it was a play-back command, and generated another beep in response.)

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[PHONE] "Thank you! Your phone number was 443-28347-47756-377764-22222. Is that correct?
BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[PHONE] "Thank you! Do you have any children?
BEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[PHONE] Thank you! What is the age of your first child? BEEEEEEEEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[PHONE] "Your first child is 1,222 years old. Is that correct? BEEEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[-------------- BEGIN ENDLESS LOOP ----------------]

[PHONE] "Thank you! Do you have any more children? BEEEEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[PHONE] "Thank you! What is this child's age? BEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[PHONE] "This child is 4,233 years old. Is that correct? BEEEEP."

[ANSWERING MACHINE] "BEEEEEEEEEEEEEEEP."

[--------------------END LOOP ----------------------]

My wife, upon noticing that the answering machine had been going for over half an hour, turned up the volume to find out what was going on. When she discovered this endless loop (by now she had over 200 children, all over 1,000 years old), she switched off the answering machine. The computer never called again.
