Paracord (<http://survivallife.com/2014/11/20/paracord/>) is an insanely useful item for preppers and off the grid living.

Our friends at DIY Ready (diyready.com) have made an awesome list of all the best paracord knots and hitches.

The two half-hitches is a part of a family called “binding hitches.” Not surprisingly, these types of hitches are meant to bind and, also not surprisingly, they are typically used in situations where you don’t want/need to quickly untie your hitch. You may have also heard it referred to as a “clove hitch over itself.”

Step 1: Thread the paracord (<http://survivallife.com/2014/11/20/paracord/>) through the eyelet

You can use anything to practice these knots on, but open eyelets are an easy practice tool to use.

(HTTP://WWW.BUDSGUNSHOP.COM/)

Once weighted, this simple hitch seats very tightly and can be quite difficult to untie, especially with thinner rope and paracord.

The Tautline Hitch

Unlike the Two Half Hitch, the Tautline Hitch is easy to untie. When it is not weighted, you can adjust its placement on your line easily, making it an ideal hitch for lashing down your tent, tarp, or any other situation where you might need to adjust the length of your line.

Step 1: Wrap the string around the pin and behind it

This knot allows you to adjust the length of the rope
How to Tie Knots, Hitch Knots, Paracord Knots, Knots, Paracord Hitch

With the Tautline unweighted, slide your hitch up and down the line. It should move freely. Then pull tightly on your rope and it should cinch in place wherever you currently have it on the line.

The Slippery Hitch is ideal for any situation where you may need to untie your hitch quickly. When fastened over an object, Cabela's holds strong. But once the object is removed, a simple tug on the string unques it.

The Trucker's Hitch

TRUCKER'S HITCH

If you only have room in your head for one hitch, the Trucker's Hitch should probably be it (though if you are that slow...you probably aren't reading this). While it could be used in any situation where something needs to be secured as tightly as possible, it's most obvious use is fastening things to the top of your car or into your truck bed.

ABOUT

(HTTP://WWW.GANDERMOUNTAIN.COM/)

At Survival Life, we have a mission to help you learn the skills in the survival and preparedness fields, to any and all who wish to become more prepared for whatever may come. We will take a logical and rational approach to dispelling the myth that anyone who prepares themselves is crazy or paranoid.

(HTTP://WWW.BUDSGUNSHOP.COM/)

Our goal is to be the ultimate one stop destination for anyone that has an interest in or questions regarding survival and preparation. We strive to maintain a truthful and unbiased compendium of knowledge, both in original content, product reviews and survival tips, as well as curated articles from other top survival websites.
