SURVIVAL LIFE

Knifemaking is an ancient art, but it seems like it's being lost in our modern world of convenience.

It's really a shame that in all the hustle and bustle of modern life, we've lost so many of the ancient skills passed on by our ancestors.

The truth is, in order to truly be prepared and survive, you need to reconnect with these ancient skills. You also need to know how to be resourceful in a survival situation, and find unexpected uses for everyday items.

Today's video teaches you how to do both SURVIVAL LIFE (HTTP://SURVIVALLIFE.COM/)

Watch the video below GANDER.MTN. (make a knife out of an old wrench) (HTTP://WWW.GANDERMOUNTAIN.COM/)

This is a great if you have a fully operational work shop. But in a survival situation who has access to a work shop. Love the idea though.

People made beautiful knives long before they had modern workshops. My son makes knives out of all kinds of scrap materials and all he uses is a hot fire to retemper the metal, a hammer to shape it, and something to rub it on to finish the edge. A brick or rough metal can serve for that in a pinch. He has made small knives in our wood stove and in an open campfire. It really isn't that hard to make something serviceable.

Jen Steele that's what I was trying to say. I once had to repair an aluminum canoe by heating my knife in a evergreen brow fire and using it to melt solder into the crack. The knife blade was yellow white hot. I was in the bush of northern Quebec.

ABOUT

WE LIVE OUTDOORS

At Survival Life (HTTP://WWW.SURVIVALLIFE.COM/), we provide a variety of links, tips, and skills in the survival and preparedness fields, to any and all who wish to become more prepared for whatever may come. We will take a logical and rational approach to the subject of dispelling the myth that anyone who prepares themselves is crazy or paranoid.

 Cabela's (HTTP://WWW.CABELAS.COM/)
THE OUTDOOR STORE

Our goal is to be the ultimate one stop destination for anyone that has an interest in or questions regarding survival and preparation. We strive to maintain a truthful and unbiased compendium of knowledge, both in original content, product reviews and survival tips, as well as curated articles from other top survival websites.
